2. Executive summary

2.1 Key findings

A comprehensive beginning teacher mentoring program is implemented to support all new and returning teachers.

A range of professional learning opportunities is organised including regular meetings with the mentor teacher, weekly group discussions, observation and feedback sessions and the opportunity for Watching Others Work (WOW). Teachers new to the career speak positively regarding the support provided to them by the program coordinator, their mentor teacher and colleagues.

Collective Teacher Efficacy (CTE) meetings provide opportunities for year level cohorts to discuss a range of topics and build a collective understanding.

The leadership team identifies CTE as a high-yield strategy designed to enhance student learning. Members of the leadership team or the cohort leaders identify the agenda of each meeting. Additional release time enables these meetings to occur weekly. CTE meetings focus on a range of topics including data analysis, additional planning time and informal moderation. Teachers speak positively of the CTE process.

A comprehensive improvement agenda has been developed, with many of the actions grounded in evidence from research.

The Explicit Improvement Agenda (EIA) is identified as writing by the leadership team and most staff members. The 'Focused Agenda 2020' document and the Annual Implementation Plan (AIP) utilise five priority areas including feedback, targeted teaching and assessment, CTE, critical and creative thinking, and inclusive practices. Four of the 46 actions in these documents specifically reference writing. The leadership team identifies the need to narrow and sharpen the EIA.

The Head of Curriculum (HOC) works with teachers to unpack the three levels of planning.

During cohort planning days, the HOC uses an alignment planning process, supporting teachers to deepen their understanding of the Australian Curriculum (AC). Classroom teachers and the HOC examine the alignment between AC achievement standards, content descriptions, the assessment task and the Guide to Making Judgements (GTMJ). Classroom teachers identify that this process is supporting them to build their understanding of the AC. The leadership team and teachers identify that this is new work and with additional time and opportunities, the process will be further refined and knowledge of the AC enhanced.

Interactions between staff, students, parents and families are caring, polite and inclusive.

A team approach to delivery of teaching is apparent in cohorts. Staff members speak highly of the professional and personal support they provide for each other. At the time of the review, most staff indicate that they would like communication to be improved, articulating a desire for communication to be more timely, consistent and clear.

Teachers demonstrate high levels of knowledge in specific areas and are eager to further expand their knowledge and skills.

The leadership team seeks opportunities to further strengthen the collective understanding of teachers and enhance individual teacher knowledge. The leadership team recognises the importance of facilitating opportunities to engage in coaching, mentoring, observation and feedback as a way of enhancing effective teaching practice. They identify the need to unpack with teachers what quality professional learning means.

School leaders and teachers are committed to success for all students and acknowledge that all students are able to learn.

School leaders and teachers acknowledge that becoming a more inclusive school is an ongoing process. The collective understanding of quality inclusive practices is developing. Most teachers indicate there is an emerging shift in the sharing of responsibility for the way the school caters for the diverse range of student needs.

A strong collegial environment exists across the school.

Teachers demonstrate an enthusiastic and dedicated approach to their students and speak positively regarding teacher aides sharing responsibility for student learning. A team approach to delivery of teaching is apparent in cohorts. Staff members speak highly of the professional and personal support they provide to each other. Teachers have high levels of professional commitment to ensuring all students are achieving positive learning outcomes.

The school has strong and established working relationships with a range of community groups and local businesses.

Partners are involved in collaboratively planning and supporting the school's goals and achievements. The school has established and values the long-term partnership with the local McDonald's at Bracken Ridge. This partnership is based on a mutual respectful relationship. The school collaborates with the leadership of the franchise to deliver a range of benefits for the school community.

2.2 Key improvement strategies

Narrow and sharpen the EIA and associated strategic documents, developing associated action plans that include end goals, strategies, targets, timelines and responsible officers.

Further develop teacher knowledge of the AC learning areas, cross-curriculum priorities and general capabilities, including through the use of the alignment planning process.

Develop and implement agreed processes and protocols for communication that meet the needs of recipients, including consistency, timeliness and clarity.

Collaboratively develop a collective understanding of quality professional learning and a collegial engagement framework, including agreed practices and processes relating to coaching, mentoring, observation and feedback.

Collaboratively develop, implement and monitor a whole-school approach to inclusion that caters for the full range of students.
